

Autumn 2 poem by Benjamin Zephaniah

The Grand Old Duke of York

He could not count to ten

When he got to four and a half

He had to start again.

On exam day he started at none

And he slowly progressed to one,

By the time he got to two, three and four

His memory had gone.